

Creator Justice Chat | Jota Dev problem with Envi scripts

I'm Juanca, owner of Jota Dev, and I want to explain my situation with one of the stores allied with Creator Justice. Apparently

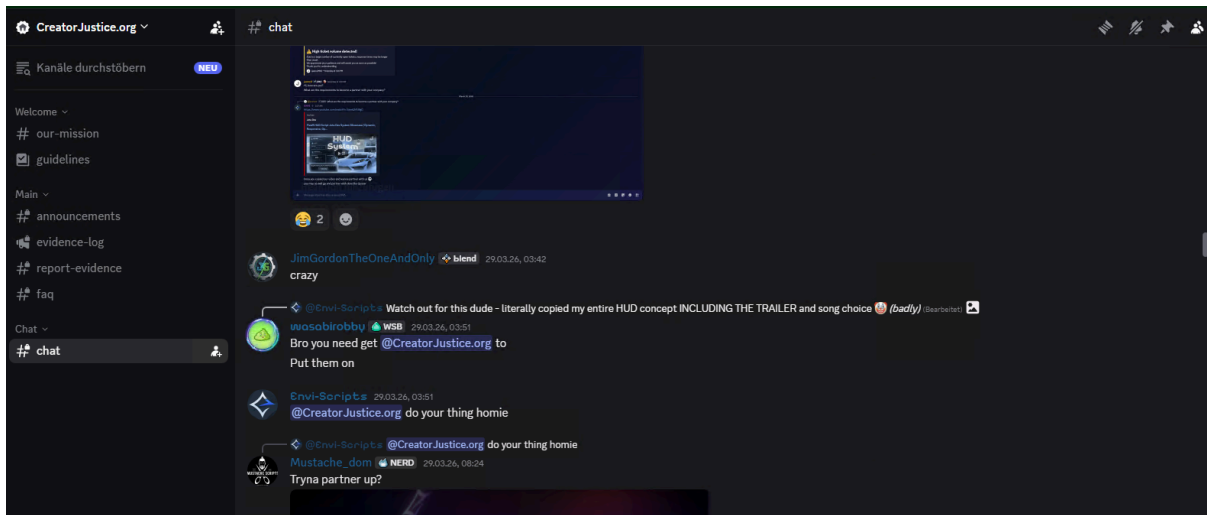

It all starts on a normal morning when a guy contacts me explaining the situation:

ENVI Scripts accused Jota Dev of copying their HUD concept (even though ENVI Scripts wasn't the creator of said concept). In fact, according to their own statements, ENVI Scripts HUD COPIES others that were released before their date.

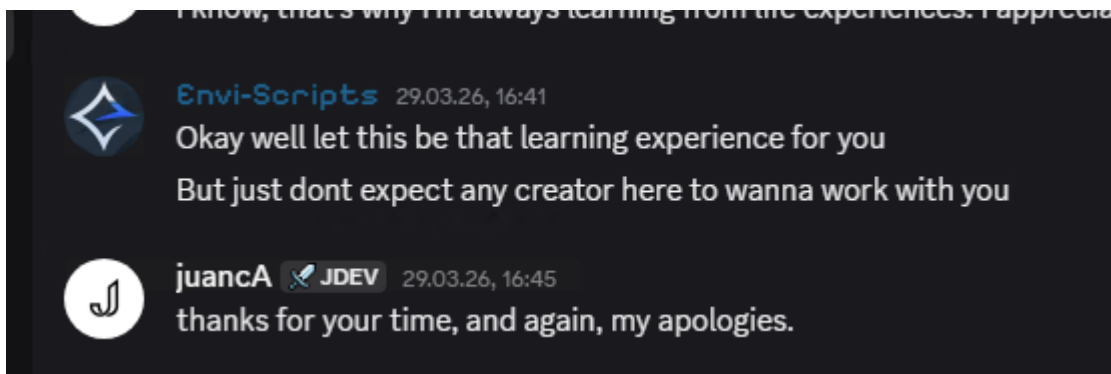

They also accused me of completely copying their video. It's true that the video looked similar to theirs—I spoke with the company that made it, and they told me they used their HUD video as a reference, but at no point was it a COPY as they claim. They always manipulate information; instead of trying to solve a problem, they make it even bigger to try to destroy and humiliate you, just like they did to me in front of hundreds of creators. And yes, I say humiliate and bring you down—here is more proof of that.

Store owners like Wasabi saying “make this yours, my friend”...

When there’s an issue with shops, it should ALWAYS be handled privately with the owner to resolve it. What these people do instead is post everything in a chat, where their friends laugh it off and ridicule you—they try to get rid of competition in a dirty way.

Despite apologizing to them more than 10 times (for no reason at all), they continued to ridicule and mock me publicly in a chat, even threatening me by saying that I shouldn't expect all the stores in this chat to want to collaborate with me:

This PDF is not intended to justify any actions by my company or myself. My goal right now is to show the reality of how these large stores behave toward "small" creators: making false accusations, intimidating them, laughing at them, and publicly ridiculing them.